

Disability Passport

Mik Scarlet

Hello folks

You know that thing that we all do as disabled people, we have to send off really personal and detailed information about ourselves to do things that non-disabled people just take for granted. That sending off of a PIP letter to go and see a band or a scan of your blue badge so you can park somewhere, all this kind of invasive stuff, well I've kind of had enough of it and I bet you have too.

Which is lucky because this scheme is meant to replace that.

It's giving back the power to disabled people. We choose what information we sign up, what information we give out. And we have it in one central place so that we don't have to keep sending the same information to every single concert venue and theatre or whatever we might want to go to. The scheme holds it. It will give out its information to businesses on a need to know basis and it will only be what they need to know. And it's free for the user so disabled people get the service for nothing and businesses pay a small fee but they get a really top quality service. It's run by disabled people so it's not for us, it's by us.

It's fully legally compliant because we have the best legal minds running it and they are disabled. So, it's great. I'm very proud to be involved and I think it will be a massive game changer.

So, with that I bid you adieu and remind you that this is by us not for us – winner!
